The imminence of the danger is apparent from the fact that the Japanese authorities have requested the paper mills department of the Mitsu Bishi Kaisha to take over some 7,500 acres of the bamboo forests of Formosa. It is known that the bamboo tree has been the raw material from which the Japanese have recently made the larger portion of their paper products; so is thought that, by introducing the improved methods of forest cultivation and harvesting, this tract of woods will furnish yearly 10,000,000 bamboos, adapted for convertion into paper pulp. No matter whether the paper com-pany will establish its mills at For-mosa or ship the bamboo to Japan in a partly finished state, the development of this new source of raw material will
